From the Leiden Gazette, dated July 24.

Baſil, July 10.

THERE are Letters from Languedoc which ſay, That on the 28th of laſt Month, a Detachment of the Garriſon of Niſmes, was ſent to reinforce a Body of 600 Men commanded by Monſieur Julien, to enable him to go in queſt of 1200 Malecontents who had made an Excurſion near Montpelier: But, not far from Niſmes, this Detachment fell into an Ambuſh of 450 Camiſars, and after a ſharp Fight of 3 hours the Royaliſts were beaten with great loſs; The Camiſars remain'd Maſters of the Field, and had 100 kill'd on their ſide.

The laſt Letters from Switzerland ſay, That on the 4th inſtant Count Wallenſtein arriv'd at Lions from Thoulon, and the Envoy of the Elector of Mentz (who was taken at the ſame time as Count Wallenſtein) arriv'd there two days after. That on the 6th the Count ſet out from thence to Paris: While he was at Thoulon the Marſhal de Ceuvres offer'd to lend him 2000 Piſtoles, and Monſieur de Vauvray, Intendant of the Marine, made him a Compliment of the like Sum; but having no need of Money, he excus'd himſelf from accepting their Offers. Monſieur de Vauvray ſet at Liberty the Dutch Seamen taken by Monſieur de Coetlogon, and advanc'd Money to the Officers towards defraying the Charge of their Journey to Holland; but afterwards gave notice to the Court, and to the Duke de Bourbon Governour of Burgundy, that he was inform'd there were 4 Jews in diſguiſe among them, who had Jewels about them to the value of 7 or 800000 Livres. Whereupon they were ſeiz'd at Varneton in Burgundy, and ſent Priſoners to the Baſtile at Paris: Their Jewels were taken from them and ſent to Court; and ſince their Confinement they have been examin'd whether they left any other Effects behind them conceal'd in the Ships taken by Monſieur de Coetlogon.

Nancy, July 15. We have receiv'd the following News from France, Niſmes, July 1. On the 27th of laſt Month Monſieur de Salgas a Gentleman of the Sevennes was tried at Alets, being accus'd of harbouring the Malecontents in his Houſe, where they melted down the Plate they had taken out of ſeveral Churches; there were 28 Witneſſes againſt him; and after he had made his Defence, and endur'd the ordinary and extraordinary Queſtion, without confeſſing any thing, he was condemn'd to the Galleys for Life, his Goods are confiſcated to the King's Uſe, his Houſe is to be pull'd down, and a Pillar is to be ſet up on its Ruins for a laſting Mark of Ignominy. The Marſhal de Montrevel is not well pleas'd with this Sentence, thinking it too mild, and that the Gentleman deſerv'd Death. The Regiment of Dragoons of Firmancon are juſt arriv'd here from Alets, and are to be diſpos'd in the Neighbourhood of this City. Some Soldiers diſguis'd in the Habit of Reapers, came on the 29th Ult. to Vergeze in the Vaunage, and addreſs'd themſelves to Monſieur Jonquet an Officer of the Malecontents, and proffer'd their Service to cut his Corn, of which he accepted; but as he was going to ſet them to Work, they ſeiz'd on him, and by the help of ſome Soldiers their Comrades, who lay hid near the place, brought him off Priſoner hither.
